

The Echinoderms Newsletter<sup>1</sup>

No. 10. January, 1979

Prepared in the Department of Invertebrate Zoology (Echinoderms),
National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington
D.C. 20560, U.S.A.

1978 was quite a year for the echinoderms. There were two international echinoderm meetings. Acanthaster planci made the newspapers again, as a result of its coral chomping activities on various South Pacific islands. American scientists studied sea cucumber culturing techniques in China. In the middle of all this excitement, we neglected to issue a Newsletter. This time, we're six months late. We're sorry about the poor quality of many of the pages in this issue. A bad batch of mimeograph stencils coupled with a temperamental machine caused us some headaches. We hope to do better next time.

We have the impression that our mailing list contains a good deal of "dead wood", names and addresses of people who for one reason or another are no longer interested in receiving the Newsletter. In order to reduce our work load and reduce the cost of production, we want to remove unwanted names from the mailing list. Thus, we ask you to complete and return the enclosed form (see last page of Newsletter) if you wish to have your name retained on the Mailing list. We're sorry to cause you this trouble, but trust you'll understand our aims.

David L. Pawson

Items of interest

Meetings -

1. David Nichols reports on two highly successful international echinoderms meetings in Nature Vol. 275, 25 September, 1978: 268-270. These were the Third Echinoderms Conference in Sydney, Australia in March 1978, and the meeting at Bedford College, London, in July 1979.

2. A European Colloquium on Echinoderms will take place at the Free University of Brussels on September 3-7, 1979. The Colloquium Organizer, Dr. Michel Jangoux, notes that "although the conference in Brussels will be mainly centered on Europe and the Mediterranean area, it is nonetheless also addressed worldwide and we hope to welcome colleagues from overseas". If you are seriously interested in learning more about the Colloquium, please write to Dr. M. Jangoux, Laboratoire de Zoologie, Faculte des Sciences, Universite Libre de Bruxelles, Avenue F.D. Roosevelt 50 Bruxelles, Belgium.

Recipes -

Keith Serafy recommends the following sea urchin roe recipes. They were originally published in Sport Diver 1 (2):39-43.

1. Urchin mushroom cream sauce:

half cup urchin roe; 1 can (10.75 ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup; half cup milk.

Force urchin roe through seive and blend with soup and milk. Heat until boiling, stirring constantly. Pour over hamburgers, chicken or other meats or vegetables. Good served over asparagus and sprinkled with cheese.

2. Urchin mushroom cream dip:

1 cup urchin roe; 1 can (10.75 ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup.

Force urchin roe through sieve and blend with soup. Use as a dip or spread on crackers for hors d'oeuvres.

3. Raw urchin roe:

add lemon juice or teriyaki sauce.

Bon appetit! (?).

Reprints:

Brendan O'Connor notes that Mortensen's "Handbook of the echinoderms of the British Isles" is being reprinted by:

Cosmos Antiquarian Books, P.O. Box 30, Lochem 6570,
The Netherlands.

The price will be approximately 20 British pounds.

Requests and Suggestions

Bay-Schmith - would like to learn of techniques for massive culture of sea urchin larvae.

Feral - would like to receive reprints of papers on structure and ultrastructure of the food canal of holothurians, especially apodous forms, and also information on techniques for laboratory maintenance of burrowing marine animals.

Hawkins - would like information on energy budgets of tropical echinoderms.

Mackie - would like copies of papers relating to shape ecology/ adaptive morphology of echinoderms.

Nauen - requests references and papers on growth, conversion rates, food uptake, oxygen consumption of asterioids from various habitats.

O'Connor (B.) - requests any unpublished information on distribution of echinoderms off the Irish coast.

Phelan - would like to have alcohol-preserved specimens of the sand dollar Heliophora with water vessels preserved.

Smith (A.B.) - would like to have copies of bottom photographs from the Indo-west-Pacific showing the echinoid Micropyga tuberculata.

Strathmann - is interested in learning the northern limit of Dendraster excentricus in North America and the southern limit of Echinarachnius parma in North America.

Wolfram - requests information on biology of Paracentrotus lividus in sea grasses.

Webster - requests information on location of collections of any Lower Mississippian crinoids from Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho or Nevada.
